"Called to Be Saints"

Today and tomorrow, we remember all our beloved dead: those who are already in the glory of heaven, whom we celebrate on All Saints' Day, and those who are being purified in purgatory, whom we remember on All Souls' Day. Today, we celebrate the countless men and women who have gone before us and now share in God's glory. Some are well known, like St. Francis, St. Teresa, and St. Carlo Acutis, but most are known only to God. They were ordinary people: parents, grandparents, workers, teachers, priests, and religious sisters. They tried to live their faith through love and service. Their lives remind us that holiness is not reserved for a few extraordinary people; we are all called to become saints. As Jesus teaches us in the Beatitudes, "Blessed are the merciful, the peacemakers, and those who hunger and thirst for righteousness." The saints were people who trusted God and kept trying to live the Gospel. And as we remember our departed loved ones, we pray for their souls and entrust them to God's mercy, holding on to the Christian hope that death is not the end. May we live with faith and love so that, one day, by God's grace, we may all be reunited in the joy of heaven. Fr. Bruno, Pastor

Tutti I Santi

"Viviamo da santi, per ritrovarci un giorno in Paradiso"

Oggi e domani la Chiesa ci invita a riflettere sul mistero della vita, della morte e della vita eterna. Oggi celebriamo Tutti i Santi, coloro che sono già nella gloria di Dio; domani commemoriamo i nostri defunti, pregando per loro e affidandoli alla misericordia del Signore. Per noi italiani, questi giorni hanno un significato particolare: ricordiamo i nostri genitori, i nonni e le persone care che ci hanno lasciato. Ma la domanda è: che cosa ci insegna la nostra fede davanti alla morte? Ci insegna che la morte non è la fine, perché in Cristo siamo chiamati alla vita eterna. I santi ci mostrano che questa speranza si prepara già qui, attraverso una vita vissuta nell'amore, nel perdono e nella misericordia, come ci insegna Gesù nelle Beatitudini. E allora, mentre ricordiamo i nostri cari, non limitiamoci a portare fiori sulle loro tombe: preghiamo per loro e impegniamoci a vivere con fede e amore. Perché il legame che ci unisce a loro non è cancellato dalla morte, e la nostra speranza è che un giorno, per la grazia di Dio, possiamo ritrovarci tutti insieme nella gioia eterna del Paradiso. Fr. Bruno, Parroccho
